“That’s just the power of Jayson’s acting.”

Scott Gimple

The Walking Dead (AMC)

Jayson is a singularly talented actor. He makes you believe he is the person he’s playing. He can modulate as necessary and knows how to entertain without breaking the world of the story. I had a great time working with him and hope to do so again soon.

Micahel Uppendahl, Director

Candy (Hulu)

There are many times in our industry that we refer to someone having "that spark." I worked with Jayson on a film where he had roughly three lines, and I knew then that he was something special. Not just a character actor but a real artist with presence and talent. It's been a joy to watch his career grow.

Craig Brewer, Director
Footloose (2011) (Paramount)
Fight Night (Peacock)

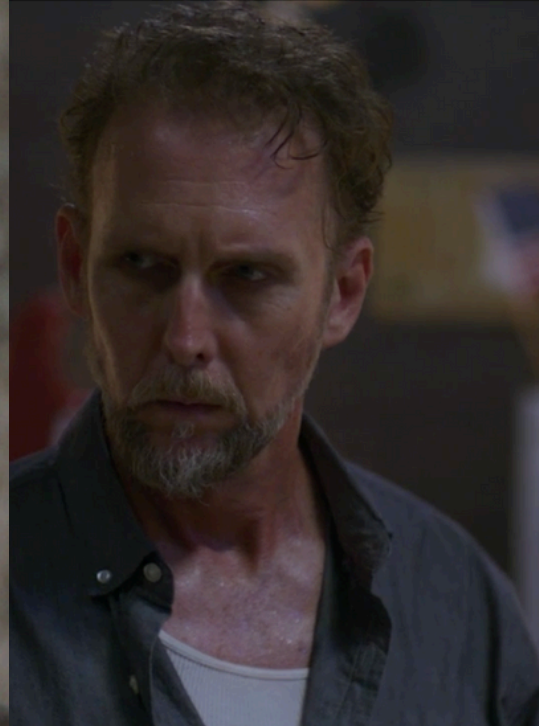

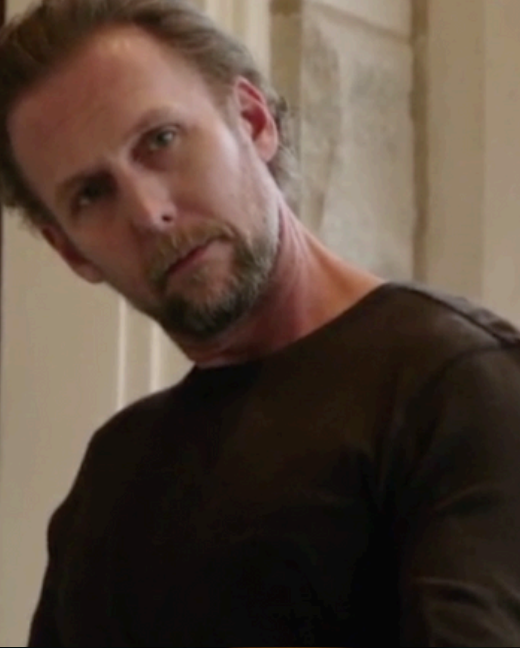

Jayson is a gifted actor and a true collaborator. He brings depth and authenticity to his characters while remaining flexible and easy to work with. There's a reason we continue to cast him; he elevates our work.

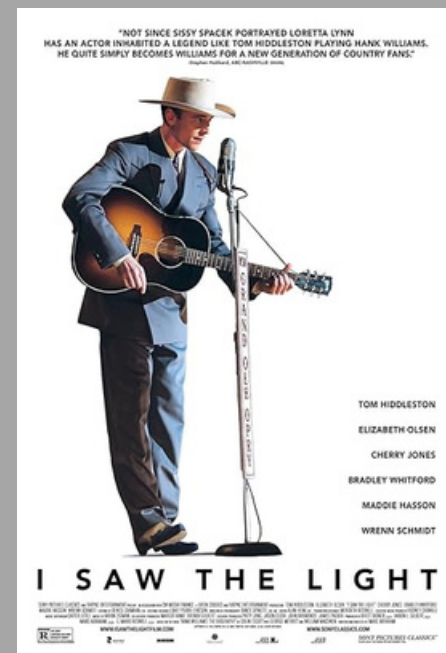

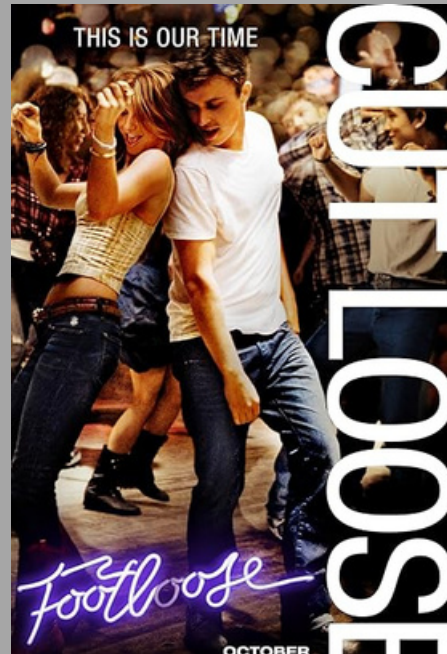

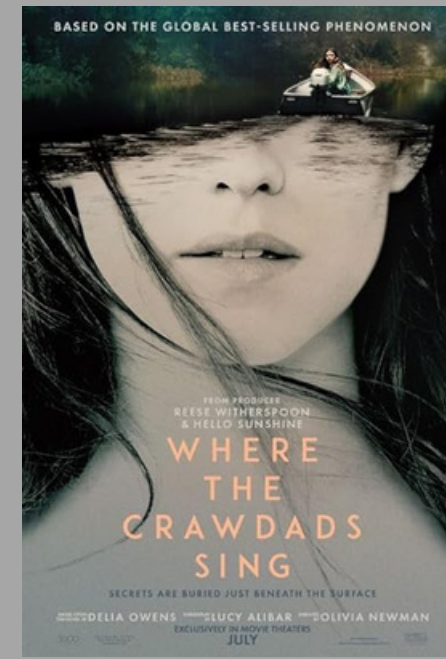

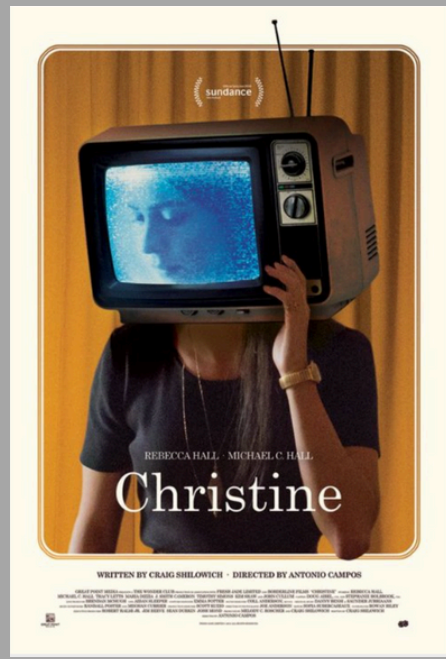

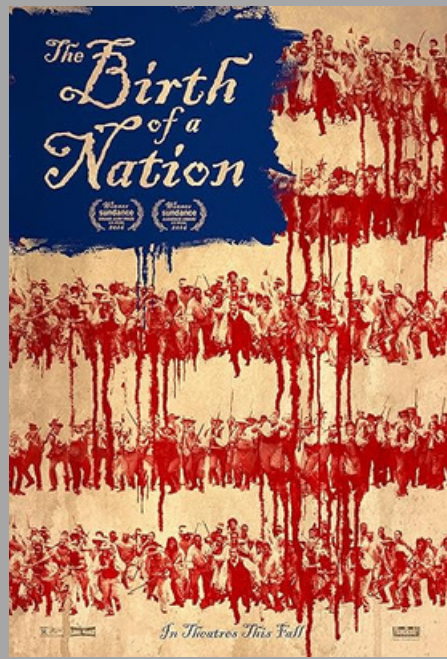

Ruckus & Lane Skye, Writers & Directors
The Devil to Pay (Netflix)

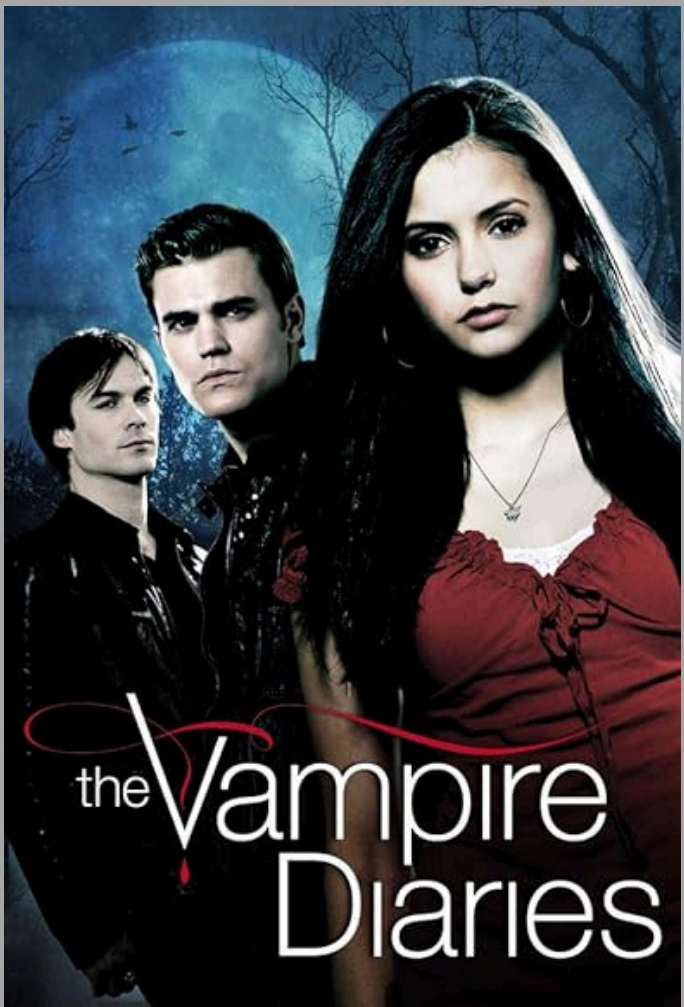

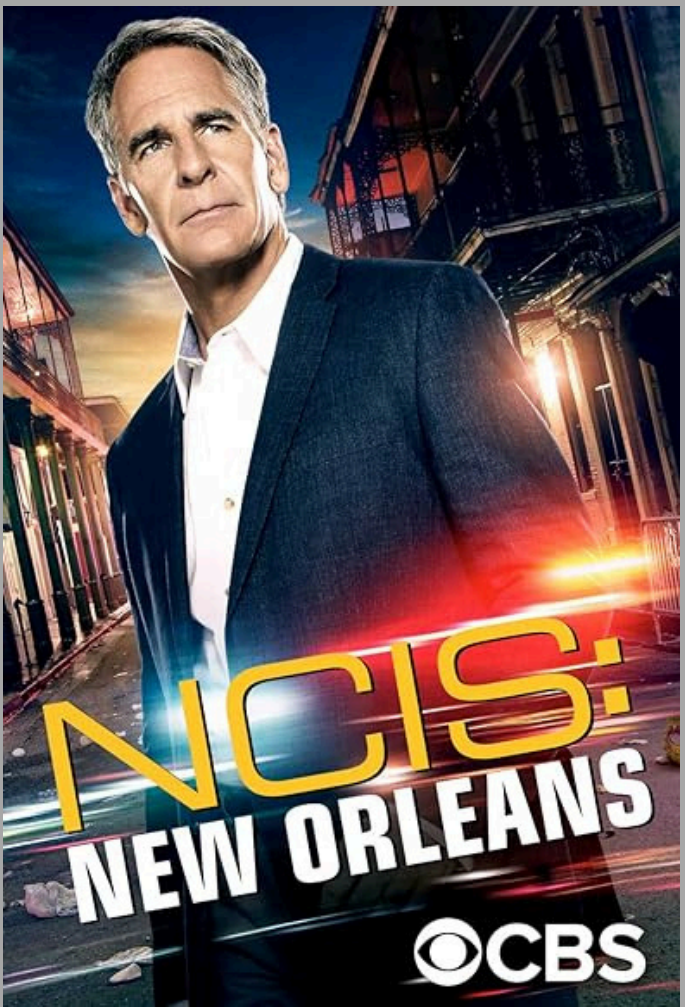

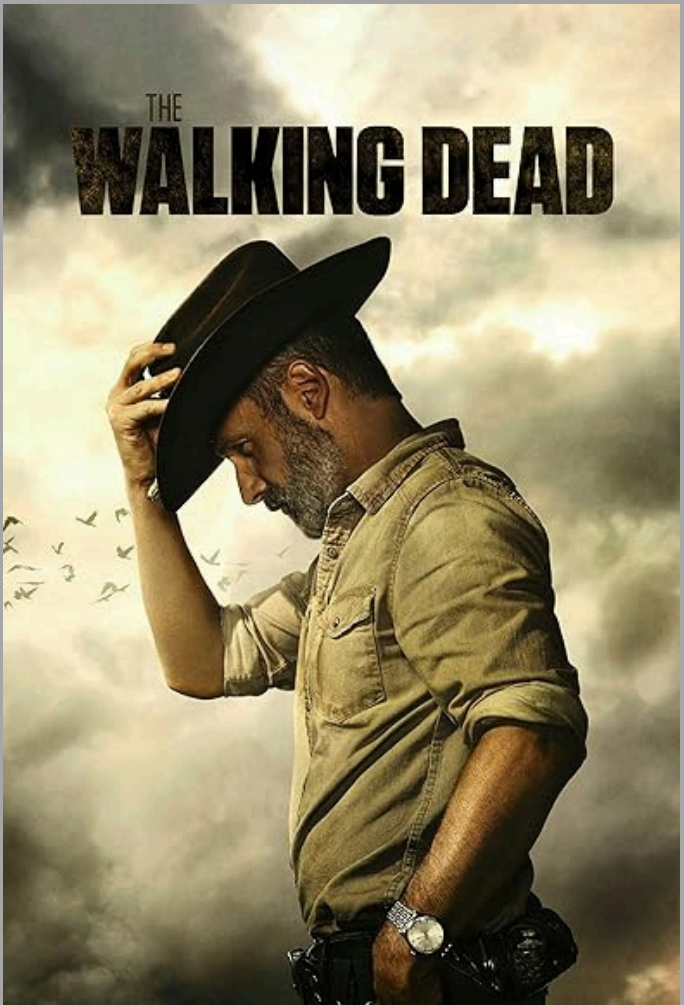

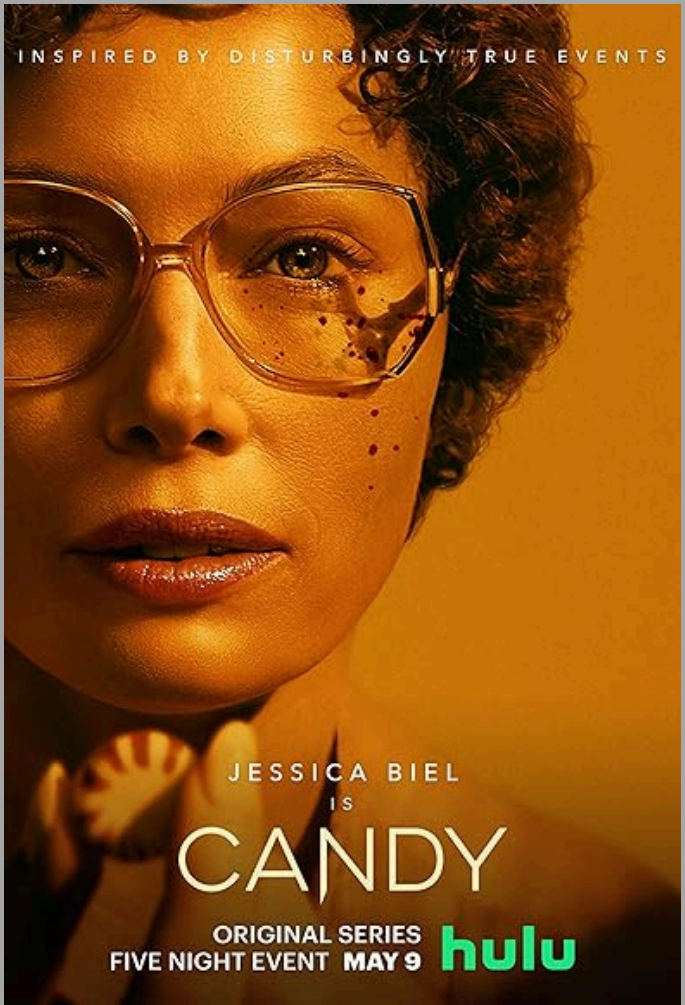

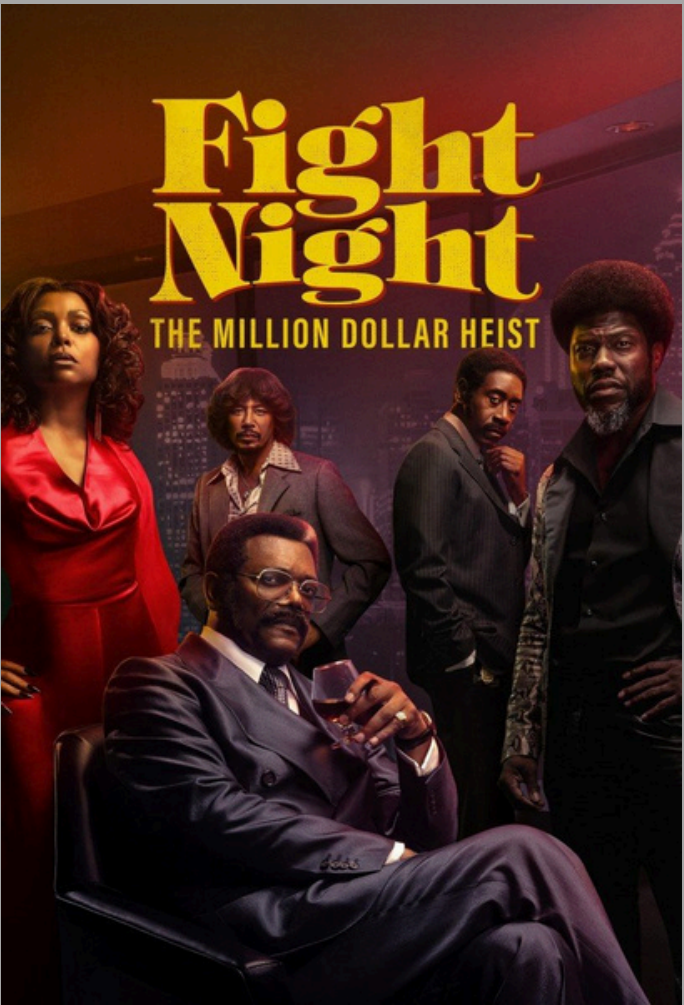

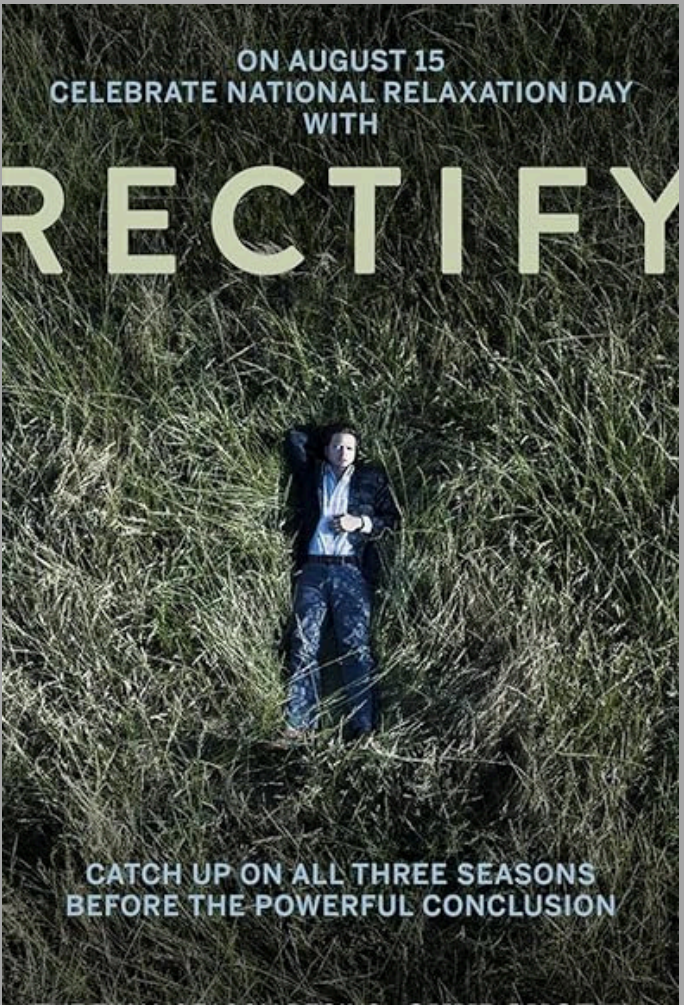

It is quite rare to find an actor who combines such natural talent with his overflowing spirit of collaboration. Jayson is a thoughtful performer, bringing depth, authenticity and an effortless sense of humanity. I truly enjoyed working with him and look forward to doing it again.

Jayson Warner Smith: From smooth and subtle to edgy and evil

POSTED MARCH 30, 2015 BY DAVID SOMERSET FILED UNDER OPINION

He may have a showreel that stretches back to 1991 and a short film entitled Last Breeze of Summer, but Jayson Warner Smith's career really hit a high in 2013.

Thanks to a recurring role in Rectify, Smith was able to etch his name into the TV audience's brains and continue this momentum onto the silver screen.

Today, with his stock seemingly at an all-time high and his time in Rectify at an end, the natural question to ask is what is the next logical step for JWS? We already know he's appeared in Mississippi Grind in 2015, but where else can we expect to see the man from Atlanta in the coming months?

Review: “The Laramie Project” a profound moment for Atlanta theater, Theatrical Outfit

KATHY JANICH × SEPTEMBER 18, 2019

Each performance is imbued with authority. Each actor owns every person he or she portrays. Subtle changes — the putting on or taking off of a hunting cap, knit hat, newsboy cap, a hijab, a red blazer, a judge’s robe or priest’s collar; an accent, the turn of a wrist, the realignment of a shoulder, the deepening of a voice, a stooping posture — delineate who’s who and where we are in the telling of the story.

Among the standouts:

- Smith as no-nonsense Tectonic interviewer Greg Pierotti, Laramie’s gay and fey Jonas Slonaker, compassionate hospital CEO Rulon Stacey and Matt Shepard’s broken father.

Working with Jayson is always such a pleasure. His keen intellect and years of experience aligns with an unassailable honesty to deliver consistently powerful and relatable performances. I especially enjoy rehearsals with Jayson. He can take virtually any idea, good or not-so-good, and somehow make it work. There is a real sense of curiosity and bravery in his work that serves both the material and the process.

David Crowe, director
Our Town (Theatrical Outfit)

As a director (for theatre) who's worked with Jayson, I find him to be incredibly prepared, passionate, flexible, and team-oriented. He played multiple roles in my Atlanta production of The Laramie Project, and each character was nuanced, grounded, utterly specific, and incredibly moving. As a casting director for on-camera projects, I can always count on Jayson to turn in creatively crafted tapes with bold but believable choices that never feel like acting. He excels at realism and is, I find, immensely watchable and wonderful.

Learning To Fly: Cross-country on a Triumph Bonneville + Video

Watch: Learning to Fly

Smith, who you might've seen in 2012's Coma, 2011's Footloose or the AMC/Sundance series Rectify, does a stellar job at capturing the spirit of a road journey on two wheels. His work becomes even more admirable when you realize that it was shot almost entirely on an iPhone 5s.

"I figured I could only watch it for a minute before getting bored and switching-off, but that wasn't the case," says Editorial Director Sean Alexander about the meandering 40-minute film. "Its rhythm nicely echoes my own recollections of cross-country road trips. It's great escapism for those of us stuck behind a keyboard."

Biography

Jayson has the distinction of having two films in both the 2015 and the 2016 Sundance Independent Film Festivals. In 2016 with Christine and The Birth of a Nation which won both the Audience Award and the Grand Jury Prize; and also in 2015 with 99 Homes and Mississippi Grind. Jayson also has had the honor of acting in two films that premiered at the Tribeca Film Festival. In 2016 with The Book of Love and again in 2019 with Only. He also is in The Devil to Pay (known as Reckoning at the time) featuring Danielle Deadwyler (Till) that had its world premiere at the Atlanta Film Festival in 2019 where the film won Best Georgia Film.

An Atlanta, GA native he is best known for his recurring roles of Wendall Jelks on SundanceTV's Rectify and Gavin on AMC's The Walking Dead. Jayson has been seen in, to name a few, American Made with Tom Cruise, Christine with Rebecca Hall, Tracy Letts and J. Smith Cameron, Where the Crawdads Sing, and Hulu's recent mini-series Candy. In 2023 he appeared in the films Emancipation directed by Antoine Fuqua and You're Killing Me featuring Dermot Mulroney and the late great Anne Heche. He will be seen in a major guest star role opposite Don Cheadle in NBC Universal's Fight Night: The Million Dollar Heist on Peacock in September 2024.

Now Jayson is stepping into producing. Playing the starring role and Exec. Producing, the short film Chipper. penned by Ruckus & Lane Skye (The Devil to Pay, Becky, Rattle the Cage), he stars as Reese, a prodigal son brought home by a father with a family secret and a cry for help. Chipper has screened at over thirty festivals as of May 2024 having won awards at several and now has a home on Omeleto on YouTube.

Further details:

Jayson has also had roles on Netflix's Outer Banks, Amazon's One Mississippi, CBS' NCIS:New Orleans, FOX's Sleepy Hollow, CW's The Vampire Diaries and in the films Where the Crawdads Sing, American Made, Christine, The Birth of a Nation, The Book of Love, 99 Homes and Mississippi Grind, Jayson has been busy working with wonderful film makers, directors and show-runners such as Olivia Newman, Doug Liman, Craig Brewer, Carl Seaton, Nate Parker, Antonio Campos, Ramin Bahrani, Ray McKinnon, Brian Helgeland, Ryan Fleck and Anna Boden.

Other work includes I Saw the Light, Anchorman II, 42, Being Mary Jane, Footloose (2011), Coma and other projects and plays. Jayson has shared set time with some Hollywood heavyweights such as Tom Cruise, Don Cheadle, Leslie Odom jr., Frieda Pinto, Armie Hammer, Maisie Williams, Michael Shannon, Andrew Garfield, Ryan Reynolds, Ben Mendelsohn, Tig Notaro, Laura Dern, James Woods, Lauren Ambrose, Cuba Gooding Jr., Demi Moore, and David Duchovny.

Jayson is repped by The Alexander White Agency. Atlanta & Los Angeles.

... But if you can say you worked with this incredibly talented and professional actor who was also an absolute gem of a human with a heart of a lion and a soul of a poet, then you can say you worked with Jayson Warner Smith."

Bill Purple - Director/Writer/Producer

The Book of Love

"Jayson is a Swiss Army Knife when you are lost in the woods, a scene saver, a character actor with a leading man's gravitas and just a lovely, lovely person to boot. He is one of those actors that you want to see in everything and can do anything and is interesting every time. Jessica (Biel) and I had admired his previous work and we were so excited to cast him in our first film "The Book Of Love" and again in our Hulu series "Candy". We are already excited about what we'll do next with him!"

Michelle Purple - Producer - Iron Ocean Productions

The Book of Love

Candy (Hulu)

"If I could do nothing but theater for the rest of my life and make the kind of money I make in television, I'd do only theater," says Atlanta stage/film actor Jayson Warner Smith. His credits include "Our Town" and "The Laramie Project" at Theatrical Outfit, AMC's "The Walking Dead" and Sundance TV's "Rectify."

These days, Atlanta-based stage and film actor Jayson Warner Smith — seen recently in Theatrical Outfit's Our Town / Laramie Project repertory — jokingly considers himself bicoastal. He spends half the week in Athens, where his wife owns a home, and half in a Kirkwood condo. Wife Lisa Strzelecki prefers the Classic City. Kirkwood keeps Smith close to his work at Pinch 'N' Ouch Theatre, where he teaches acting fundamentals with a "serious emphasis" on the Strasberg method (in which actors strive for realism by using their emotional memories).

You may recognize Smith as despicable death-row inmate Wendall Jelks from the Sundance TV series Rectify (2013–14) or as bad guy Gavin on AMC's The Walking Dead (2016–18). That two-season stint ended when he was stabbed in the neck with a stick from behind by an 11-year-old boy. "It was a wonderful death," Smith says. "Half the episode was devoted to my last day on Earth."

The boy born at the corner of Highland Avenue and Boulevard, when Atlanta Medical Center was called Georgia Baptist Hospital, grew up as a theater kid in Smyrna, doing shows with the South Cobb Arts Alliance, Cobb Children's Theatre and Cobb Teen Theatre. His middle name — Warner — comes from those years, added when one of the actors' unions told him he couldn't use simply "Jayson Warner" because there were too many others. The name honors Joy Warner, a neighbor and an artistic director at the Cobb theaters. He considers her a second mom.

Jayson Warner Smith played opposite Heather Rule in the two-character thriller "Blackbird" at the Robert Mello Studio.

For fun, Smith takes out his 2001 Triumph Bonneville motorcycle. For his 50th birthday, in fact, he rode it solo on a five-week cross-country trip — from Atlanta to Yellowstone to Taos, New Mexico, to Los Angeles and back to Atlanta. "Definitely a life-changing moment," he says. He turned the odyssey into the 40-minute travel documentary Learning to Fly.

In his downtime, he hangs out with wife Lisa; they cook and eat and watch HBO together. And he goes to the gym, teaches and auditions.

"Every once in awhile," Smith says, "they let me act."
